

from A HISTORY OF THE ENGLISH CHURCH AND PEOPLE

COPY MASTER

Literary Analysis

HISTORICAL WRITING

Historical writing is a chronological account of the past of a nation or a group of people. Usually, historical writing is objective. Often, it is written in narrative form.

Directions: Consider what facts you learned about seventh-century England from reading this passage. On this chart, write facts you learned about each topic.

| Topic                 | Facts I Learned |
|-----------------------|-----------------|
| Monasteries           |                 |
| Language and literacy |                 |
| Poetry                |                 |
| People’s world view   |                 |